We all know that when it comes to love, the key is finding the right person for you. However, if you are serious about finding your partner, then here's an advice for you: learn how to attract them with Hindi language. This article will help you out because it provides a detailed guide on how to speak Hindi in terms of pronunciation and grammar. It also discusses different aspects of the language-culture so that you can get a better understanding of what kind of people will be attracted towards your Indian persona. With that, you will be able to attract your soul mate, which can lead you to a fulfilling relationship. Before we get to the 'how', let's get the basics out of the way. Hindi is an Eastern Indo-Aryan language spoken by about 450 million people in India. It is one of the official languages in India and it is also one of the 22 scheduled languages recognized by Republic of India (1954). Being an Indian language, Hindi has distinct qualities that help it stand out from other contemporary languages spoken around the globe. Hindi vocabulary consists of both Sanskrit and Persian words, while its grammar is based on Sanskrit. There are several books and resources available in Hindi in order to learn the language in a better manner. How to attract someone? Here's a step-by-step guide: 1) Start by understanding your potential partner's personality. Men and women, when it comes to attracting someone, tend to look for different things in a person. While men prefer attributes like beauty and money, women like honesty and kind nature. Both of them want someone who can make them happy by giving them everything they desire. When you know the kind of people you're looking for, then it becomes easy to find a way to attract them. 2) Talk about common things to bring both of you together. It doesn't matter the kind of relationship you're looking for, what matters is that both of you get to know each other's interests and get close. It's advisable to meet with your potential partner more than once before settling into a serious relationship. Another important aspect that people like to talk about is family. People spend more time thinking about their families than they do working on themselves, so by talking about family at the beginning, it will discard any possible negativity of meeting someone new. 3) Perfect your accent using good grammar and pronunciation. The first impression is the last impression for a lot of people. If you use a different accent or if you use a bad grammar, people will usually have a negative idea about your personality even before they get to know you. Although this doesn't actually happen, it's still important to be careful about what you say. 4) Find common interests and talk about those things instead of trying to impress someone. In general, Indian culture is very family oriented. However, as more and more people are finding partners outside the country, changes in the relationships are appearing too. Even though some Indian parents will still consider arranged marriages as their first choice of settling down with someone, there are some who want freedom of choice when choosing a partner.
